MONEY MATTERS

ANSWERS TO THE TOP 10 QUESTIONS ABOUT MONEY AND INVESTING

Should I pay off my highest interest debt or debt with the smallest balance first?
 Dave Ramsey, in his book "The Total Money Makeover," recommends eliminating your debts with the smallest balances first and then progressing to the ones with the largest balances. This gives you some psychological affirmation to continue with the hard task at hand.

Which is better: term life insurance or whole life insurance?
 In almost every case, term life insurance is a better option. Insurance is protection against the sudden loss of a person's income for those who depend on that income. After your children have graduated from college and you've paid off your mortgage, there is little need for life insurance.

Should I pay off all my debts first before I start investing?
 You should start investing in a Roth IRA regardless if you have debt or not. Waiting will only delay compounding interest. Paying off debt is very important, but it's hard to stop investing completely. Try to continue investing, even if it's just a little bit, while paying off debts.

Where should I invest my emergency fund?
 An emergency fund is not for investing, plain and simple. Emergency funds should stay liquid and readily available in case you actually need the money. High-yielding online savings accounts or using money market funds to hold your emergency fund can be a better option.

Is it too late to invest in gold?
 It may be too late to invest much in gold and precious metals now. Retirement portfolios should be geared toward index funds and other vanilla-type investments. Non-traditional investments should only make up a small percentage of your total portfolio, such as 10 percent.

How should I save for my children's college?
 529 College Savings Plans are an excellent tool to invest for college. They allow parents to invest with after-tax dollars and later withdraw tax-free. The investment can also be transferred to other beneficiaries in the event an older sibling earns a scholarship, for example.

Which should I invest in first: a 401(k) or a Roth IRA?
 The question is about taxes. Do you think that your tax rate is going to go up in the future? If yes, then a Roth IRA is a better option over a 401(k). Paying your taxes now at a lower rate and withdrawing future earnings tax-free will result in a lower total tax bill, assuming your tax rate will increase in the future.

What should I invest in after I max out my Roth IRA?
 Dave Ramsey recommends investing 15 percent of your income for retirement. After you maximize your and your spouse's Roth IRAs and contribute enough to your 401(k) retirement plan to capture your employer's match, then you have many options. If your plan doesn't have good investment options, you may want to consider index investing through a company such as Betterment.

How much cash should I be holding in my portfolio?
 Too many young investors hold too much cash in their portfolios for their age. There is no reason for someone in their 20s or 30s with several decades until they reach retirement age to hold more than 10 percent of their entire portfolio in cash and equivalent investments like online savings accounts.

Do I really need umbrella insurance even if I do not have many assets?
 Many people mistakenly think they don't need umbrella insurance because they don't have much in the way of assets to lose if they were to lose a lawsuit. But, the one asset that is often overlooked is often also your largest one—your future income. Umbrella insurance is one of the best ways to protect your future income from attack.

Income Guidelines for CHIP/Children's Medicaid

- 1 Find your family size on the left side of this chart. Follow that row to the right.
- 2 If your family's income is less than the monthly or yearly income shown in the orange Medicaid section, your children might get Medicaid.
- 3 If your income is higher, follow the row to the green CHIP section. Your children might get CHIP if your income is less than the monthly or yearly income shown in the green section. Children of families that earn higher incomes may also qualify in some cases.

| Family Members (Adults plus children) | May Qualify For Children's Medicaid | | May Qualify For CHIP | |

ALBANY, N.Y. (October 05, 2021) New State of Health, the official health plan of the state of Marketplace, announced today the health insurance options available to the New Yorkers in the 2022. The open enrolments for coverage in a qualified health plan 2022 begin on the 16th November 2021 for new and returning consumers and end on the 31st January 2022. "Market entries have exceeded six.3 million people this year, as more New Yorkers choose to protect themselves and their families with quality coverage at affordable prices during the public health emergency COVID-19," interim health director Danielle Holahan said. "Consumers can start previewing plan 2022 options and prizes today through the shopping tool of the NY State of Health plan." Significantly increased federal tax credits remain available for New Yorkers enrolling in Qualified Health Plans (QHP). The financial assistance ARPA (Enhanced American Rescue Plan Act) is now available, even for the highest income people for the first time. Consumers who receive premium tax credits, more than 60% of those enrolled in the QHP, will not see any change in their premium costs for 2022, or in some cases a small decrease in the cost of coverage compared to 2021. Consumers can estimate their premium costs after the strengthened federal tax credits of the American Rescue Plan Act through the New York State Health Awards estimation tool available here. Today, one in three New Yorkers is enrolled in health coverage through the Marketplace. Registration has increased in all market programs since April 2021, when the State has begun to implement the ARPA tax credit and the improvements of the plan (EP). Additional data concerning the impact of changes in federal and state health policy on people throughout New York State are provided in the NY State of Health "Health Insurance Coverage Update".
